Session Description:

The purpose of the schoolwide approach is to enable schools to integrate the services they provide to their children from Federal, State, and local resources. By making systemic changes that knit together services funded from all sources into a comprehensive framework, schools will have a better chance of increasing the academic success of all their students. This session will look at the differences between Schoolwide 1, Schoolwide 2 and explore the Schoolwide 3 funding model.

Presenter Information:

Terry Strayhand, MS, was a teacher and administrator in the areas of special education and early childhood. Currently she is an Education Program Specialist at the Arizona Department of Education, where she works with school districts and charter schools regarding Title I and Parent Involvement programs.

Erik M. Francis, M. Ed., M. S., has been an educator for 14 years, working as a middle and high school English teacher and administrator. He is the Title I Targeted Assistance Program Coordinator at the Arizona Department of Education, where he created the ESEA For LEAs trainings on developing, budgeting, and evaluating Title I targeted assistance and schoolwide programs. He has created and conducted professional development trainings for educators in Differentiated Instruction, Six Traits Writing, Writing Across the Curriculum, and Structured English Immersion.

Nadine Groenig is an Education Program Specialist in the Title I unit at ADE where she has worked for almost nine years. Prior to joining Title I, Nadine was in the Operations unit where, among other duties, she administered the Rural Education Achievement Program. In January 2007, she founded and is the Executive Director of SIENA (Southwestern Institute for the Education of Native Americans). Nadine graduated summa cum laude with a bachelor's degree in English from Arizona State University.

Lois Kruse has worked for over 15 years at the Arizona Department of Education providing over-sight for many State and Federally funded programs. Lois has been a member of the Grants Management task force that works to provide continuous improvement to this fiscal management system since its inception.
